ABOUT ME

I’m a passionate Laravel Backend Developer who loves building scalable and high-performance web applications. My journey into backend development started with curiosity about how servers, databases, and APIs communicate behind the scenes—today, that curiosity drives me to design reliable and efficient systems that power real-world applications.

I specialize in Task Scheduling, Queue Job Processing, and Third-Party API Integrations, ensuring applications run smoothly, handle background processes efficiently, and communicate seamlessly with external services. My focus is on writing clean, maintainable, and optimized backend code that supports fast, secure, and scalable platforms.
